

Clovelly

City of Randwick

Clovelly is a small beach-side suburb in Sydney's Eastern suburbs, in the state of New South Wales. Clovelly is located 8 kilometres South-East of the Sydney central business district, in the local government area of the City of Randwick, within the Federal Division of Wentworth.

Clovelly is a mainly residential suburb on Clovelly Bay. Clovelly Beach is a small beach that sits on the end of the narrow bay. The bay is popular with swimmers. The bay is home to one of the first surf lifesaving clubs in the world, Clovelly Surf Life Saving Club, which was founded in 1906. Clovelly is surrounded by the suburbs of Bronte in the North, Randwick in the West and Coogee in the South.

The Clovelly tram line began at Alison Road to the intersection of Clovelly and Carrington Roads in 1912, then extending to Clovelly in 1913 helping to popularise the area. This line branched from Anzac Parade at Alison Road, and ran on its own tram reservation beside Centennial Park as far as Darley Road. Here it diverged from services to Coogee, to run north along Darley Road, then turned right into Clovelly Road to run down to its terminus at Clovelly Beach. Though services ran from Circular Quay and from Railway Square (from 1923), the line closed in 1957. The tram line followed the current route of bus 339.

Education;

Schools in Clovelly include:

- Clovelly Public School
- St Anthony's Catholic Systemic Primary School

Sport;

There are many clubs to join in the Clovelly area, Some include:

- Surf Lifesaving
- Rugby League
- Rugby Union
- Swimming Club

