Ryde
City of Ryde

Ryde is a suburb of Sydney, New South Wales. Ryde is located 13 km North-West of the Sydney central business district and 8 km East of Parramatta. Ryde is the administrative centre of the local government area of the City of Ryde and part of the Northern Suburbs area. It lies on the North bank of the Parramatta River.

Santa Rosa Park is located between Quarry Road and Bridge Road. Known for walking and bike riders as there is a separated pathway. Shrimptons Creek runs through the park in a North-Easterly direction flowing into the Lane Cove River. The park is used for football and cricket. Ryde Pool is home to water polo events.

Transportation is not an issue in Ryde. There are services operated from Port Macquarie and Circular Quay down George St to Broadway and Parramatta Road. In the peak hours and other busy periods, supplementary services operated from Railway Square.

Tram services to Drummoyne and Ryde were serviced by the Rozelle Tram Depot. The service, after departing the depot travelled along the Crescent and Commercial Road (now City West Link Road) in Glebe, turning left onto Victoria Road. Terminating near the intersection of Pope and Devlin Street in Ryde.

Education;
